Coaching Competencies and Corporate Leadership SHARYN KOLBERG

Coaching Competencies and Corporate Leadership closes the gap between the need for leadership coaching and its actualization. The authors provide a two-tier answer to this complex question. They explain how effective competency coaching and 360-degree feedback programs can help organizations reach their goals and demonstrate how a core competency-coaching program can be successfully implemented. They discuss how to use 360-degree feedback programs as a tool for employee development. Together, these two programs provide the double-punch companies need to develop and retain employees who propel their organizations to new levels of success.
